A DESIGNATED SCHOOL GROUP ENTRANCE AT THE PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS

On February 1, 2016, a designated School Group Entrance was established at the Parliament Buildings. Located at the rear of the buildings near the Legislative Library, this entrance enables us to check-in and welcome school groups more efficiently. All school groups must now enter the Parliament Buildings via the School Group Entrance.

The entrance and adjacent reception area also enables us to highlight information about our provincial and parliamentary history, and information about your school's MLA.

Please view the map for directions to the new School Group Entrance. For additional information, please contact Sally Lee, the School Liaison, at 250-387-9243 or email tours@leg.bc.ca.

On Wednesday, February 17, 2016, two new female MLAs - Melanie Mark and Jodie Wickens - were sworn in following by-elections in the ridings of Vancouver-Mount Pleasant and Coquitlam-Burke Mountain. With their elections, women now make up 38% of MLAs in the Legislative Chamber - the highest percentage of female representation in a Canadian legislature. How many female MLAs are there in BC? Email your response to PEO@leg.bc.ca.

Tour the Parliament Buildings with Francis Rattenbury

Bring your class on a Friday this spring to take advantage of this special opportunity!

In 1892, an architectural contest was held to select a design for the new Parliament Buildings. Of 65 sets of drawings submitted by competitors from across North America, those of 25-year-old architect Francis Rattenbury were selected. Born and trained in England, Rattenbury had arrived in British Columbia only months before winning the architectural contest.

Construction began in 1893 and the Parliament Buildings were officially opened in 1898. Following their completion, Rattenbury went on to design a number of Victoria's landmarks including the famous Empress Hotel (1904-1908) and the C.P.R. Steamship Terminal (1923-1924). He also found success beyond the provincial capital, designing prominent public buildings in Nanaimo, Rossland, New Westminster, Nelson and Vancouver.

On Fridays this spring, the colourful character of Francis Rattenbury is being brought to life for school groups by one of the Parliamentary Players. Reference this opportunity when booking online and your students can explore the Parliament Buildings on a tour led by the man himself!
